Med.—Medallion.

Illustrations of Tatting

For making tatting, use a strongly twisted thread and a shuttle. In winding thread around shuttle, care should be taken not to wind on too much thread at one time, as it will cause the shuttle to gape apart at the ends.

First position of the hands (Fig. 1)—Double st on knots, take the end of thread between thumb and forefinger in left hand, holding shuttle in right hand, pass the thread over the third and fourth fingers, draw it back towards thumb and cross the two threads under the fingers as shown in Fig. 1. Pass shuttle thread around the little finger of right hand and draw the shuttle as shown in illustration.

Fig. 2

Second and third positions of the hands (Fig. 2 and 3)—Pass the shuttle between the first and third fingers as shown in Fig. 2, bring it out behind the loop where shuttle has been put through the loop. Beginners can put right hand on the table with the thread firmly extended, leaving the left hand perfectly motionless. Raise third finger of left hand to draw stitch which form the first half of the double stitch. Be careful in keeping thread in right hand still while left hand is in motion—the right hand, or shuttle thread must always be free in passing through the knots.

Fourth position of the hand (Fig. 4)—Hands resume position as shown in Fig. 1. Figure 5 reproduces the same, showing a few complete stitches.

Positions of the hand showing picot (Fig. 6)—Picots are used in tatting, as in crochet or knitting, making effective combinations where different parts of a pattern are joined together: a little care is necessary in getting the picots even. Illustration shows how to form picot tatting with two shuttles (Fig. 7). Two shuttles are used in tatting when the rings are not to be connected together at bottom by a thread or when you desire to hide passage of thread to another cluster of stitches or when threads of different color are used. Working with two threads is called a chain. Working with one thread is called a ring. When you work with two shuttles, tie the two threads together, wind thread around the little finger several times, leaving shuttle hang down, using the other shuttle to make movements as though you were working with only one shuttle.

The open picot—The open and closed picot are formed by leaving a loop on extended thread as shown in illustration. Closed picots are formed by drawing stitches close together.
